Anyone who has attended a transition training course that did not include written and skills tests, has not met the statutory requirements to qualify to obtain a new level certification.

Those individuals who have not met statutory requirements for certification, but have been issued such certification, will receive written notification of such, an explanation of what actions are being taken to ensure continuation of their old certification, and resources that may be accessed to complete the transition training requirements.

If your transition training course did not include written and skills testing, it is recommended that you contact the Kansas Board of EMS to facilitate faster access to resources and completion of the statutory requirements.
